

Dr Deborah Sanders is a Reader in Defence and Security Studies at the Defence Studies Department of King's College London, where she specializes in security issues in the Black Sea.

Her main areas of research are the Black Sea, military transformation and change, small navies, maritime power and Ukraine. Her most recent publications include a monograph on Maritime Power in the Black Sea and an article on 'The Bulgarian Navy after the Cold War'.