

Mark Loughran
President, Central & Eastern
Europe, High Growth Regions
Honeywell

Mark Loughran joined Honeywell in December 2021, as President, Central and Eastern Europe (CEE). Mark is responsible for strengthening Honeywell's position as a leading industrial technology provider to businesses across Central and Eastern Europe that are leveraging technology to make their operations safer, smarter and more sustainable.

A strong and talented leader with a track record in software, technology and engineering, Mark is an expert in cloud-based computing and its role in transforming critical sectors, including telecoms and pharmaceutical, across CEE and the wider European continent.

Mark joined Honeywell from Microsoft, where he held the positions of General Manager for Poland and the United Kingdom. Prior to Microsoft, Mark also held several senior leadership roles at other technology companies, including Regional President at Pace and General Manager, UK and Ireland at Nokia. He was also previously Vice President, CEE and UK at GSK.

Mark holds a Doctorate in Erythromycin Biosynthesis from Cambridge University, United Kingdom. Based in Warsaw, he is the proud and busy father of 4 children, And spends his free time enjoying swimming and cycling.