

Olga Reznikova

Researcher, National Institute for Strategic Studies, Ukraine

Author of the book “National resilience in a changing security environment”, more than 70 scientific articles and analytical publications, a number of analytical notes and reports for the President of Ukraine, the National Security and Defense Council of Ukraine, the Cabinet of Ministers of Ukraine. Participated in several international research projects and a number of events. Main research interests focus on national security and resilience, strategic analysis and forecasting in national security field, methodology for comprehensive risks assessment, crisis management, combating hybrid threats, security and resilience culture, education in national security and resilience sphere, global development and international security.