

Dr. Ing. Costică Postolache, MG (ret), brings extensive expertise in military C4ISR systems and cybersecurity. His military career spans several decades in the Communications and Information Technology branch, Planning of Defense Endowment Directorate, culminating in his role as the first Commander of the Romanian Cyber Command during its initial two years of existence.

Retired Major General Costică Postolache currently serves as Deputy General Manager for Business Development at Interactive Software, a leading Romanian company specializing in Command and Control (C2) systems for defense and national security. Throughout his career, Dr. Ing. Postolache has played a key role in advancing strategic technologies supporting military operations and national defense, and he is now focused on fostering partnerships to develop a strong national defense industry.