

Major General Marius-Haiantz Patriche

Deputy Director - General Directorate of Internal Protection

Since 2017, Major General Marius-Haiantz Patriche has served as Deputy Director of the General Directorate of Internal Protection within Romania's Ministry of Internal Affairs. With over two decades of experience in intelligence and counterintelligence, he has held multiple executive and leadership roles within the Directorate and its predecessor structures, contributing significantly to the development and coordination of internal security capabilities.

General Patriche possesses extensive expertise in the protection of classified information, cybersecurity, countering hybrid threats, and strengthening institutional resilience. He has represented the General Directorate of Internal Protection in numerous high-level national, European, and international forums, playing an active role in fostering cooperation and aligning Romania's internal protection standards with broader security frameworks.