

LTG (ret) Tomasz Piotrowski

LTG (ret) Tomasz Piotrowski graduated in 1991 from the now-defunct Gen. J. Bem Higher School of Missile and Artillery Forces in Toruń. He also studied at the National Defense Academy (now the Academy of Military Arts), where he completed higher command and staff studies of military command organization and management, and postgraduate studies in information security, among other subjects. Gen.

Tomasz Piotrowski began his military service as a platoon commander in the 36th Mechanized Regiment. He also served, among others, in the 16th Artillery Regiment as chief of staff and deputy commander, as well as in the 12th Mechanized Division in Szczecin in the positions of chief of missile and artillery troops (2010-2014), deputy chief of staff for operational matters (2015-2016), and finally chief of staff and deputy division commander (2016-2017).

In 2012-2013 he participated in the military mission in Afghanistan, where from October 2012 to May 2013 he was deputy commander of the Polish military contingent, consisting mainly of soldiers from Szczecin.

Between 2017 and 2018 he was chief of staff of the Operational Command of the Armed Forces, and in 2018 he became the commander of Operational Command of Armed Forces until 2023. He retired in 2024.