

Brendan O'Donoghue is an Executive Vice President at Mach Industries, a defense technology company dedicated to building next-generation platforms that maintain an allied edge. Prior to Mach, he held executive roles at ICON and Zipline, and co-founded software platforms used by over 100 government agencies. Earlier in his career, Brendan served as a Director at the Office of the U.S. Secretary of Defense. He holds an M.A. in international economics and finance from Johns Hopkins SAIS and a B.A. in economics from Hamilton College. He lives in Austin, Texas with his wife and two children.