

Iuri-Alexandru Covaleov - Senior Associate Expert, New. Strategy Center, former Deputy Chief, Military Intelligence Directorate

Iuri-Alexandru Covaleov is a retired Rear Admiral of the Romanian Armed Forces and currently Senior Associate Expert at the New Strategy Center. He previously served as Deputy Chief of the Romanian Military Intelligence Directorate, where he held several senior leadership positions in the fields of intelligence, surveillance, and reconnaissance.

Covaleov graduated from the Mircea cel Bătrân Naval Academy in 1994 and served in a wide range of operational, staff, and command roles during his military career. He was Deputy Defense, Military, Air and Naval Attaché in Russia (2009–2013) and Defense, Military, Air and Naval Attaché in Ukraine (2013–2018). Within the Military Intelligence Directorate, he later served as Director of the Strategic HUMINT Office and Deputy Chief for ISR and Operations, contributing to the development of HUMINT, SIGINT, GEOINT, and OSINT capabilities and to the transformation of the Romanian Armed Forces' intelligence architecture.

He holds a master's degree in Defence Studies from King's College London and a PhD in Military Sciences and Intelligence from the Carol I National Defence University. He has also completed advanced programs at the George C. Marshall European Center for Security Studies and has been involved in academic and professional training activities in defense and security studies.