Liviu Horovitz is Head of the project Strategic Threat Analysis and Nuclear (Dis-)Order (STAND) and an Associate in the research group International Security, where he has been involved in the STAND project since 2021.

His research focuses on international security, nuclear policy, and strategic threat analysis. Prior to his current role, he was a Postdoctoral Researcher at the Brussels School of Governance, Vrije Universiteit Brussel (2019–2021), and at the School of Advanced International Studies (SAIS), Johns Hopkins University (2018–2019).

Earlier in his career, he was a Research Fellow at the Belfer Center for Science and International Affairs, Harvard University (2016–2017). He earned his PhD at the Center for Comparative and International Studies at the ETH Zurich (2014–2018).

Between 2010 and 2014, he worked as a Researcher with the Nuclear Policy Working Group at the Center for Security Studies Zurich. His work has consistently focused on nuclear order, deterrence, and global security dynamics.