

Bram Couwberghs is a seasoned professional with extensive experience in defense, security, and technology. He served over 14 years as an officer in the Belgian military, with deployments in conflict zones like Afghanistan, Lebanon, and Libya, and led operations in Belgium as part of the Homeland Security Operations.

After transitioning to the private sector, he held strategic business and management roles at IBM and Microsoft before joining Oracle, where he currently serves as Vice President of Defense and Defense Industry for EMEA (Europe, Middle East, and Africa).

A veteran and keynote speaker, Bram is dedicated to driving technological and organizational modernization in defense and security, leveraging his expertise to address complex global challenges.